We all need domestic and general insurance for cars, homes and contents and travel. It's a big market with roles for claims teams, and underwriters, and support in finance and marketing.

Financial Advisers and Financial Planners help clients achieve their personal and financial objectives. Their work is related to insurance through life assurance and pensions advice.

Loss Assessors negotiate on behalf of policyholders to ensure claims are accurate and realistic compensation for their loss.

Cyber analysts create risk profiles for digital threats to businesses using their data to inform underwriting decisions.

Loss Adjusters investigate claims for insurers to provide an impartial assessment of the claim.

Brokers meet underwriters to discuss their clients' insurance needs and consider the risks and likely policy requirements.

Underwriters evaluate the risk and exposure of potential clients and decide whether to accept the risk and for what premium.

Actuaries are the top level risk analysts who help to define the nature of different risks and the approach insurers can take to provide cover.

Business functions
Insurance and Financial Planning companies need support in a wide range of professions such as HR, Marketing, Finance, Law, IT, Administration, Sales and R&D. Positions often require learning while working and usually include professional qualifications. Career prospects in these roles are excellent and can take you to director level... CEO anyone?

Claims teams are the front line dealing with customers who've suffered a loss. They investigate the cause and impact of the loss and work to resolve it.

Insurance companies are generally to be found in major cities and often in some of the most spectacular buildings.

Risk Managers advise companies on any risks to their business or its profitability. They identify risks, and advise on plans to transfer or mitigate risks, often through insurance policies.

Sport and entertainment are large and complex risk areas attracting specialist risk surveyors and underwriters.
