Spotlight course SDRs and Anti-Greenwashing Rule

Course overview

Financial advisers are facing increasing demand from clients wishing to invest sustainably. With this in mind, the FCA has issued the 'Sustainability Disclosure Requirements (SDR) and investment labels' policy statement. This contains 'rules and guidance to help consumers navigate the market for sustainable investment products' (taken from the FCA website).

With the first of these rules being enforced from 31 May 2024, it's important to ensure you and your organisation are familiar with them. To help you get up to speed, this concise e-learning course brings together an overview of two key parts within the FCA's SDR: the anti-greenwashing rule and the four investment labels. These overviews are taken from our Spotlight: ESG and Sustainable Investment Advice course.

The course also offers four brand new case studies to illustrate how these issues might arise in real-life situations and how to deal with them. This course is intended to provide a broad overview of the topics of investment fund labelling and the anti-greenwashing rule from the FCA. It is not designed to enable learners to become professionally qualified in giving advice to clients regarding these matters, and should not be used to substitute learning from a more formal qualification route. The course has been authored by experts who have worked in advising, compliance, supervision and paraplanning across a range of firms.

Who is the course for?

This course is designed for Personal Finance professionals who wish to understand more about the SDR, fund labelling and anti-greenwashing rule to:

- inform their day-to-day roles;
- support implementation of the policies around the anti-greenwashing rule, ensuring that all claims related to sustainability are fair, clear and not misleading; and
- offer correctly labelled products that comply with the SDR to assist customers with making informed decisions.
