Egis in Canada Announces New Leadership

Egis is pleased to announce that Greg Northcott joins the firm as CEO in Canada effective immediately. The change in leadership structure will enable the new leader to focus on achieving ambitious targets for growth in the country.

"We are pleased to welcome Greg to the executive leadership team. He has a wealth of experience in our industry and has demonstrated strong leadership and strategic vision in previous roles. He is well-versed in the challenges and opportunities we face and his focus on Canada is intended to drive growth and success within this key market," said James Chopty, Egis CEO, Americas and Pacific.

At the same time, we are pleased to announce that Terry Lefebvre joins the firm to fill the open role of CFO for North America.

Greg Northcott

Greg Northcott joins Egis with 20 years of experience in the Engineering, Construction, and Environmental Services sectors. Greg has held numerous strategic roles, including Executive Vice President at MasTec Canada Inc. and Chief Operating Officer at WSP Canada Inc. His expertise in strategic planning, operational excellence, and P&L optimization has driven significant improvements in client engagement, profitability, and cash generation. Greg is recognized for his leadership in large infrastructure projects across Canada, promoting a culture of safety and inclusivity.

Terry Lefebvre

Terry Lefebvre is a seasoned finance professional with a wealth of experience in leveraging digital transformation to drive profitability and growth. He also has a significant experience in M&A and integration which will be critical as we look to grow both organically and inorganically. Terry's previous roles include Interim CFO at WSP Canada and Executive Consultant at CTL Consulting. His ability to create interactive digital financial reporting tools and streamline operations has led to substantial profitability improvements. Terry's leadership in finance and operations will be crucial in enhancing Egis' financial health and business performance across North America.

"We are excited to welcome Greg and Terry to our leadership team," said James Chopty, Egis CEO, Americas and Pacific. "Their combined expertise and proven track records in their respective fields will be invaluable as we continue to drive growth and innovation."
