“

I've worked with other recruitment firms in the past. I did a diligence review process before selecting Larson Maddox to support multiple growth hires for my team. My perception is the healthcare legal market is small and good talent is hard to find. Locating someone when they are not fully looking is key, as good talent is often not on the market so publicly. I think having someone be proactive trying to bring awareness to the opportunity is important, which is where Larson Maddox came in. They are tenacious and will iterate with you as you refine your ideal candidate profile. Because of the candidates they presented and successful placements made, they are our go-to firm in this space.
